Planes Sink Transport In Enemy Convoy Bound For New Guinea Harbor

Twenty Zeros Also Destroyed as Allied Air Forces Attack Ceaselessly for Two Days and Nights—Landing Areas, Barges and Beachhead at Lae Strafed by Fighter Aircraft

Pursued Right Into Port

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 9 (Saturday) (AP).—Another transport and twenty heavily loaded Japanese convoy, but some troops may have reached Lae, Allied headquarters announced today.

Our air force of all categories continued its ceaseless attacks both by day and night on the enemy convoy during the 7th and 8th, pursuing it into the harbor of Lae," said the noon communique.

"In addition to yesterday's transport losses, our heavy bombers scored two direct hits on the stern of a transport and our medium bombers sank a transport.

"In the meantime our fighters and attack types attacked the landing area, barges and beachhead causing numerous fires, explosions and heavy personnel losses. Two medium bombers and two fighters were destroyed on the Lae airdrome. Throughout the operations our fighters incessantly engaged the enemy's air forces.

"In addition to his losses of yesterday, twenty enemy fighters were also given, seven probably destroyed and fifteen damaged in air combat with our bombers and fighters. Our losses were not heavy. Such troops elements as were landed by the enemy are believed to have been fragmentary."

The destroyed transport raised to three and the downed Zeros to thirty-eight the price paid by the Japanese for the reinforcement effort.

Russians Smash Along River Taking Twenty Villages, Rail Stations

Now Less Than Sixty Miles from Rostov—Germans in Headlong Flight in Caucasus Are Hurried Relentlessly—Huge Stores of Equipment and Supplies Taken by Soviets

Press On in Stalingrad

LONDON, Jan. 9 (Saturday) (CP).—Russian troops, smashing along the Lower Don River and rolling up the vulnerable Nazi salient deep in the Caucasus, captured more than a score of villages and railway points Friday, including Zimovniki, 125 miles southeast of Stalingrad, two Soviet communiques announced early today.

A special bulletin broadcast by Moscow and heard by The Soviet Monitor said Zimovniki, thirty miles beyond Kotelnikovski on the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk Railway, fell after a stubborn fight.

The regular Friday midnight communique that followed said twenty settlements and railway stations had fallen to other Russian troops pushing westward along the Don River Valley, and northward from the Caucasian Mountain foothills.

The Russians are believed to be less than sixty miles short of Rostov as the Bolshevik drive on the Black Sea city after capturing Bataisk and pushing directly westward toward the Nazi communications hub, supplying of which would cut off huge Nazi forces retreating in the Caucasus, approximately 300 miles to the south.

Two more populated places fell to the advancing Russians along the Lower Don Valley yesterday, the midnight communique said, and "an equal number of points were taken in the Caucasus."

Among the later points were the railway station of Zolsky, only ten miles short of Tikhoretsk, a large town on the Baku-Rostov line, Nikolskoye, forty-five miles northeast of Armavir, and Ivanovka, also big towns, representing an eighteen-mile advance since Thursday.

But the Russians apparently are much nearer than that to Georgievsk, because the communique announced here mentioned Novopavlovsk.

Hungary Takes Bold Attitude Towards Nazis

Reported Anxious to Withdraw Troops From Russia for Winter

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 8 (AP)—Worried by developments on the eastern front and also about the temper of the people at home, Hungary is reported in political circles here to be anxious to withdraw its troops from Russia into Winter quarters in Hungary. This would mean, hope would spare them hardships and the danger of being crushed by a smashing Russian offensive.

It is estimated that 100,000 Hungarian soldiers are stationed in the Voronezh sector and in the sectors towards the Don where occupation troops are stationed.

The same informed sources here said the Germans asked for more Hungarian troops, but were turned down. Instead, the Hungarians said, they have hopes of pulling out those that are already in the field if they do withdraw them this Winter. Some political observers here predicted, however, Hungarian troops probably will not enter the fight again.

WEARY OF WAR

The Hungarian Government's devoloping stiff attitude towards the Nazis, it was believed, may result in further commitments or to take further risks in Hungary to a growing war weariness and a declining morale at home. The question being asked everywhere in Hungary is diplomatic headquarters said, is "what will we fighting for?" and the Government has been unable to provide a satisfactory answer.

The Hungarian people are complaining especially about conducting a war against powers which have not attacked Hungary. They are complaining also about Hungarian soldiers suffering and dying 1,200 miles from their native border.

Canadians Now On the March For the Front

North African Detachment to Join Veterans of Crack British Units

SOMEWHERE IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 8 (CP)—The Canadian Army's North African detachment is en route to the Tunisian front to join battle units of the British First Army after several days of preparation at base.

Officers and non-commissioned officers making up the draft under a colonel from Ontario will be dispersed from army headquarters to forward regiments and will be in line before long.

At the base the Canadians received detailed information about the area from British officers who have been at the front for weeks.

Representatives of the Canadian infantry probably will be in action in the line before being given time to go with British reinforcements at the front. French army camp at Sousa are going with Canada regiments and others with such outfits as the Hampshires, the Essex Surreys and the Northamptonshires who have been through some of the toughest fighting.

The infantrymen include Lieutenants J. W. Baldwin, of Vancouver, and R. P. Ramsay, of Alberni, B.C.

Axis Loses 344 Planes for 147

LONDON, Jan. 9 (Saturday) (CP).—The total air score in Tunisia for the first two months of the campaign stands at 344 Axis planes destroyed against 147 Allied planes lost, a Reuter's dispatch from Allied Headquarters in North Africa reported early today. The dispatch said that 150 Axis planes were shot down by the R.A.F., 140 by the United States Army Air Force and twenty by anti-aircraft fire and thirty-four at night by undisclosed means.

Village Near Libyan Frontier Is Taken By Allied Camel Corps

More Than Half of 400 Italian Defenders of Tanout Maller Killed, Rest Put to Flight, Though Odds Against French and American Force Attacking—Axis Assault Failure

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 8 (AP)—The capture by a French and American camel corps of Tanout Maller, a settlement fourteen miles from Tiaret in the Southern Tunisian desert near the Libyan frontier about 200 miles southwest of Tripoli, was announced today by a French military spokesman as head weather against limited Allied ground operations in the Northern Tunisian sector.

The desert corps thrusting to the south of the main enemy line through Northeastern Tunisia, attacked and seized heavy posts at the lookwoman said, but put Tanout Maller's 400 Italian defenders to flight, killing about 250 of them.

South of the Fondouk-El Aouareb area, about fifty miles southwest of Sousse, Axis forces made an attack with tank support, General Henri Giraud's French headquarters reported, but were repulsed.

The attack was a complete failure. The enemy suffered heavy losses," said the announcement.

Increased patrol activity also was reported south of Pont-du-Fahs, thirty miles south of Tunis, the French said.

It now is apparent that the Germans and Italians are being observed from all sides by the British Eighth Army in Libya, by the French in the south and by the Allied forces in Tunisia—and by the weather.

Eight Fatalities Recorded in Ontario as Result of Severe Weather

TORONTO, Jan. 8 (CP).—Eight persons lost their lives in Central and Western Ontario as a result of a snowstorm, bruised to hit this part of the province this Winter.

Over-exertion in deep drifts last week-end caused the deaths of six persons in Toronto, one in Kitchener and one at St. Catharines, coroner's inquests were told.

Thousands of man hours were lost in Toronto and district. Munitions plants because of the storm, which snarled traffic and caused thousands of workers to be late. Many persons were injured in traffic accidents, hospitals said on the driving snow.

Railway and bus schedules were disrupted.

Telephone and telegraph company officials said there was only a small number of wire trouble because the snow was dry, resulting in little packing on the wires.

Many Raiders Cross Channel

British Planes Keep Up All-Day Attacks on French Targe's

LONDON, Jan. 8 (CP).—Large formations of high-flying fighter planes streaked across the Channel in almost continual battle attacks on French bases in what apparently was a large-scale daylight follow-up to another night bombing of Germany's Ruhr.

Most of the daylight assaults appeared directed at the Calais area and beyond, with the first good weather in four days facilitating the operations.

The Air Ministry, announcing the night assaults on the Ruhr without detail, said all the attacking forces returned safely. The specific targets of the raid were not announced.

This was the third R.A.F. attack on the Ruhr of the year, two previous raids having been made on the nights of January 6 and 4.

Meanwhile seven German planes, believed to be Focke-Wulf 190 fighters, dropped light bombs on a southeastern coastal town today hitting a hotel and causing considerable damage. Four Spitfires broke up the attack.

WINCHELL RETURNS

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 8 (AP).—Lieutenant-Commander Walter Winchell, radio commentator and newspaper columnist, returned here by clipper last night from an overseas sojourn during which he was in Brazil several weeks. He declined to comment on the nature of his trip, saying he also was a "man of duty" with the Navy, and that he would report to the commandant of the Seventh Naval District here for further orders.

Edmonton, Vancouver and Winnipeg Report University Men Being Dropped

EDMONTON, Jan. 8 (CP).—Call-up notices are in the mail for seventy-five University of Alberta students who failed in their Christmas examinations, instructing them to report January 13 for compulsory military training, War Services Board officials said today.

Many of the students were reported not waiting to be called by the Army, Air Force and navy enlistment offices have been overworked during the past week as many applied for enlistment in these services.

B.C. MEN CALLED

The building contained large quantities of fatty materials.

From Europe Day by Day—

THE TIMES, London

News and Comment on International Events selected from The Times daily and published in The Daily Colonist by special arrangement with The Victorian Daily Times.

(Copyright, 1943, by Beatham Co.)

LONDON, Jan. 8.—German peril in the Caucasus is growing and they are making a desperate struggle to avoid envelopment.

The Russians are now approaching Rostov, on the Don, being only seventy-five miles away. Armavir has captured forty more places.

Before Stalingrad the Red Army's guns are maintaining a constant barrage and sorties from west and northeast are being pushed back to the centre of the trap.

The advance is especially rapid in the Central Caucasus where the Don Cossacks led other units against Georgievsk Pyatigorsk. The Nazis have been driven 100 miles from the railway from positions held before Christmastide in November last.

Since capturing Prokhladnaya, at the eastern end of the Caucasus line the Black Sea correspondent of The Times, the Russians have pressed on toward the Mayzyr River, where the Germans must stand. If the enemy is driven from here he will lose all his comfortable life Winter quarters in the Spa district.

Already his positions are none too good.

The military correspondent of The Times says the capture of Orlovka, on the Bal River, tributary of the Don, creates a great threat to Rostov. Hard days are in store for the Germans if they cannot withdraw their new cleavers as they will not be able to cross most of the Caucasus region at the present rate of their movement. Already Nazi radios are admitting the necessity of shortening their Caucasus front.

The Soviet correspondent says the German people learn little of what is happening in Russia. Foreign broadcasts are jammed and every effort is made to indicate the Red Army's defeats are only temporary. However, the strain on the Nazi troops is evident, also the heaviness of the fighting and the Report Over Thirty Tons Butter Held

OTTAWA, Jan. 8 (CP).—Preliminary reports reaching the Prices Board today showed that Canada's consumers throughout Canada have reported a total of more than thirty tons of butter in excess of the last two weeks' requirement which they are allowed under rationing regulations.

The butter ration order required holders of excess butter to report by January 5 at butter above one pound per person in their possession.

Statistics compiled by the board today indicated that the sixty-five reports representing 62,877 pounds of butter so far returned or pledged in the district average more than two pounds per person, a person is allowed one pound per week.

Two Hurt in Tram Smash

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 8 (CP).—Two women were slightly injured when a street car raced down a hill out of control into the city tonight, and finally crashed into a telephone pole, it was learned here.

The car, including nursing after smashing into four automobiles, bumped the tracks at a main downtown intersection and came to rest on the sidewalk.

Police said the motorman, Joseph Lemieux, a person, a man on the sidewalk and two women passengers in the car

Expecting Revision of Manpower Regulations

Seven-Day Notice Rule May Be Modified in Some Cases—May Compel Some Labor Transfers

OTTAWA, Jan. 8 (CP).—Revised manpower regulations, incorporating several changes, are expected to receive Cabinet consideration next week, it was learned today.

The new regulations, based principally on a recommendation resulting from the transfer of the military call-up—from the War Services Department to selective service under the Labor Department—are understood to make provision for compulsory transfer in employment at firms eligible for military call-up but reported by the army as medically unfit.

No indication has been given of any immediate intention to use this employment transfer power, but it is considered likely that it would prove useful in removing any actual regional labor shortages which might develop.

In particular, it would make available for essential war jobs men who are now being released from the army because of medical requirements. Many of those rejected by the army, it is believed, would prove perfectly fit as civilian workers in various necessary jobs.

Adjustments of the regulations requiring seven days' notice before any employee quits his job or an employer lays off men and possibly extension of the thirty-day period in which farmers are allowed to

BELIEVE DELAY AIDED INJURED

C.P.R. Official Charges Crew To Blame for Fatal Wreck At Almonte

ALMONTE, Ont. Jan 8 (CP).—The medical men testified at a coroner's inquest today that many persons injured in a Canadian Pacific Railway train wreck here December 27 probably benefited from freezing cold and rest in the seven hours which elapsed before a hospital train left for Ottawa.

Two previous witnesses, who gave first-aid to the wounded, said they were "surprised" at the delay in getting the hospital train away from Almonte after a rear end collision which killed thirty-six persons and injured 148. An Ottawa-bound local train was standing in the Almonte station when a troop train smashed through the three rear cars.

At another point in the inquest William C. Beck, Canadian Pacific Railway divisional superintendent at Smiths Falls, Ont., testified that if railway rules had been observed by the troop train crew the accident would not have happened. The troop train should not have exceeded the speed of the local train when it

Tamper With Army's Tanks

OAKLAND, Calif., Jan. 8 (AP).—At least thirty-five army tanks were rolled off a railway siding in metropolitan Richmond tonight for investigative examination after army inspectors officers were informed they had been tampered with.

Seals on the combing tower hatch of each of the thirty-five were broken. These seals, designed to insure delivery of the tanks in exactly the same condition as they left the factory, were presumably broken by a band of men that nearby residents reported setting about suspiciously in the vicinity of the siding.

There was evidence that each of these tanks had been entered, but no other similar large tanks in the assignment were not touched.

No military guards were around the flat cars carrying the tanks when residents of the area telephoned police of the suspicious actions of the band of men. The line at all was around the tanks, when police radio cars arrived. Police and state highway patrolmen found a futile search for the group.

Fire Traps Twelve in Coal Mine

MORGANTOWN, W.Va., Jan. 8 (AP).—Harry McNarty, senior engineer of the United States Bureau of Mines Mineral Resources Division, announced today that any of twelve men, trapped by an underground fire in the No. 19 mine of the Pursglove Mining Company are alive.

McNary made the statement after a partial inspection of the workings where a fire in a mine motor caught seventy-eight members of the night shift underground.

The body of one miner has been recovered, sixty-five are known to be safe and later tonight company officials said they had definitely determined that twelve men are trapped behind the wall of fire and smoke.

The flames raged throughout the day and late tonight rescue crews were attempting to establish a slow progress because of the best.

Four Times Fought Off Superior German Force

British Destroyers Damaged Pocket Battleship and Sank Cruiser When Convoy to Russia Was Attacked

LONDON, Jan. 8 (CP).—Doughty British destroyers four times fought off a superior German force, including a pocket battleship, in the Arctic dark north of Norway and then shepherded their convoy safely and intact to North Russia ports, a stronger squadron joined the defence and routed the last man-o'-war, the Admiralty announced today.

The 1,336-ton destroyer Foudla leader Arbeiten was hit and the fine destroyer Onslow was damaged, but the merchant ships loaded with important military supplies for our allies Russian Allies" reached their destination without loss or damage, the communique said.

A German destroyer of the blast claw was sunk and one of the larger ships was damaged, it said. Three planes were announced December 31 when the fierce sea still raging. The Admiralty said then the German cruiser was damaged so badly by Soviet submarines the fact that the announcement today said "one of the larger ships" was damaged suggested that it might have been the 10,000-ton pocket battleship.

The German acknowledged the loss of a destroyer on January 3 and claimed an Allied destroyer was sunk, several cruisers and destroyers damaged by gunfire and that torpedo hits were scored on four merchant ships. They placed the action off Bear Island, about

Want to Pay Wives Wages

TORONTO, Jan. 8 (CP).—The Ontario Federation of Agriculture tonight passed a resolution requesting the Dominion Government to permit a farmer ..... to pay his wife wages for all farm work or to charge as a farm cost such wages for income tax purposes.

The federation urged that farmers be permitted to average their income over a two or three-year period as well as being allowed to set off a previous year's loss against the year's income.

THINKS WAR TO BE LONG, TOUGH

U.S. Admiral Harold R. Stark Declares U-Boat Campaign No. 1 Menace

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (CP).—The U-boat menace in the Atlantic is still the No. 1 menace, Admiral United Nations, limiting offensive operations against all over the world, Admiral Harold R. Stark, commander of American naval forces in Europe, said here today.

In Washington for consultations Admiral Stark said the war is "long and tough" and, at least by implication, dismissed as premature any prediction made a few days ago by Admiral William F. Halsey, commander of American naval forces in the Southwest Pacific, that the end would be in sight.

"I have always said this war would be long and tough and I still think so," Admiral Stark declared at a press conference.

Any other statement would be a dangerously false one to entertain, if the enemy surprises us by blowing up suddenly—which I do not expect—that will add to the good fight but we shouldn't plan on it.

The sixty-two-year-old admiral, who has been in the United States Navy since 1905, described 1942 as a year in which strength was being built up, a year when undue losses had to be avoided. The present year, Joint conferences and meetings will result in agreements beneficial to both employers and employees," Morgen said.

The negotiations this union may will affect eleven mills and over 2,000 then," he added.

The proposed charge for the masks was not revealed. In Quebec City they are being made available at $1.50 each.

Nazis' Marksmanship Good—British Better

Large Ship Hit With First Salvo—Destroyer, Similarly Treated, Saved Cruiser From Destruction In Naval Action Off Norway

By CLINTON B. CONGER
United States News Correspondent With the British Home Fleet
(Dispatches in The Associated Press)

A NORTHERN BRITISH NAVAL BASE, Jan. 7 (Delayed)—The British naval force which subjected the Arctic darkness to aid a Russian-bound convoy under attack from German warships caught one Nazi ship squarely with its first salvo and stampeded the remainder, it was revealed today.

When the battle was over, one German destroyer had been sunk and a cruiser had been badly crippled.

The British force was returned to harbor intact and the downing in command, among with the command- the officer at the formation's flagship, told the full story of the sharp engagement.

The German judge had been brought out of their Norwegian historia by a convoy en route to North Russia and wrenched there as a cruiser or he would have sunk me," the admiral said.

By now the German heavy ships had opened to 14,000 yards and turned westwards for home. The possibility of a torpedo attack by two German destroyers on the port beam forced the British formation to zig-zag, losing ground.

"We opened fire on the large ship again," the captain said, "and ourselves came under very severe fire and had some very narrow escapes. However, we were not hit, except by splinters.

One shell from the unengaged German ship fell about forty yards behind us just after he had made a turn. Splinters put a couple of holes in the admiral's cabin, aft.

"By now it was thirteen hours (1 p.m.) and getting dark again. They finally got out of sight in the darkness. We followed them for a while and then returned to the convoy."

During the action, the captain said, there hadn't been a star in sight for forty-eight hours, but in the middle of the battle the navigator came to the bridge and, between the flashes of gun, calmly took the sights of five stars.

accept. Other requirements, and changes anticipated in the new regulations:

MODIFY NOTICE

It is considered likely "in informed quarters" that the requirement of seven days' notice of resignation or dismissal will be modified or removed in the case of wage earners, particularly construction workers and girls in duty jobs as waitresses and retail clerks.

Consideration has been given to reducing the thirty-day period in which farmers are allowed to accept employment if Premier Hepburn does not obtain a permit, and it is expected a provision for this may be extended to sixty days.

The new regulations have been under consideration for several weeks by the Cabinet manpower committee, Labor Department officials and the selective service advisory committee and have been redrafted in several times. They now are understood to be in final form for presentation by the full Cabinet.

Compulsory service regulations at present apply to single men and childless widowers between the ages nineteen and forty and to married men in the nineteen to twenty-five age class. In a drive to complete the registration of single men in the unmarried category, those who have not received call-up notices or who have received notices and failed to report, now are required to register before January 1 at the offices available to gasoliners and selective service offices.

he suggested will be one of overwhelming strength for the United Nations when Axis strength diminishes, leading to 1944 "when we shall be able to strike out where we could not before."

The whole strategy of the United Nations is founded on shipping, Admiral Stark continued. The submarine problem, he said, "I messed and knows are not insoluble and should be remembered about.

MORALE HIGH

"During my conditions in Britain," Admiral Stark said, morale there is exceedingly high.

"I do not see how it could be higher," he continued. "It never has been low—that's your determination to live, to win, it is tempered by a little cheerful confidence."

The health of the British people was never better, he said, and despite severe food restrictions, he never knew a civilian complain of rationing.

British and American forces are pulling together, "perfectly splendidly," he said, instancing Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, the British Navy, taking orders in the North Africa campaign from Lt.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower" of the American Army although senior in naval experience.

LONDON, Jan. 8 (CP)—A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, told a meeting of the Sixth Ship Club tonight that "We are in the offensive in the war of the air at sea," and said the U-boat menace must be beaten before victory is assured.

He read the communique announcing the successful British defensive of the recent enemy fly to North Russia and commented that they were few cases in British naval history when defenders were better or did finer work.

SOVIETS CAPTURE TWENTY VILLAGES

skaya as captured. That, apparently is the same as Novaya-Ostrava, listed on Russian maps as about sixteen miles northeast of Gorodok.

Russian Caucasian troops are battering the retreating Germans relentlessly, sending tanks and motor infantrymen around the Nazi flanks to attack from the rear in one such attack 600 Germans were wiped out yesterday, and fifty mortars and 8 number of trucks were taken, the communique said.

EQUIPMENT TAKEN

Nineteen Nazi tanks, 110 trucks, twenty-six machine guns and three supply depots were captured by another Soviet unit that occupied one inhabited locality, the Moscow said.

The Soviets officially chided Berlin for the German radio's estimation on Thursday that Red Army troops in the Caucasus are withdrawing and "shortening" their lines.

"The communique said it was "common knowledge" that the Nazis in that sector the Red Army "advanced between sixty-eight and eighty-eight miles," capturing large quantities of equipment and many prisoners.

The "Hitlerite organ grudgingly used the same belated "shortening of line" announcement a year ago during the first Russian Winter offensive—the communique said, and "as are doing it again in an effort to deceive the German people the true state of their armies in Russia.

German troops along the Lower Don Valley were reported by the Russians to be putting up a much more determined resistance in an effort to keep the Red Army from Rostov. But despite frequent counter-attacks, the thrusting forces of the Red Army still is gaining ground.

Front line reports indicated the "retreating" position is encountered the Russians said their troops had up artillery to pound the Germans from their infantry swarming into the Near line. In one such engagement yesterday the communique said, the Red Army killed and wounded—knocked out—1,000, captured twenty enemy pieces, sixteen trucks and other equipment.

On the central front northwest of Stalingrad the communique said the Russians still are using part of their effective to consolidate positions in the captured Velikie Luki area, with others are beating off strong enemy counter-attacks.

Despite the great areas overrun by Russian forces in the southern west of Stalingrad, the German who are reported firmly trapped in the city and to be still making a fighting a slow war of attrition.

Russian assault groups were said to have wrested a number of additional Nazi blockhouses in the factory area of Stalingrad yesterday, and Red artillery smashed at German battalion headquarters.

Northwest of the city on the Don-Volga River pocket, the Germans lost 300 men two tanks, thirteen machine guns and a field gun equipment, the communique said.

GERMANS BACKED IT

MOSCOW, Jan. 8 (Saturday)—(AP)—Russian troops rolling the German army back toward Rostov captured more than sixty more localities Friday on three fronts, it was announced today, including the southernmost of Stalingrad on the railway, leading to Salsk and Tikhoretsk, Soviet bases in northwestern Caucasus.

This was the situation as given in two communiques:

Col.-Gen. Yeremenko's troops pushing down the railway toward Salsk were guarding the left flank of Col.-Gen. Rokossovsky's troops striking westward in the Don valley toward Rostov where powerful measures have Nazi forces now withdrawing in the Central Caucasus. Gen. Nikolay Kirichenko's Black Sea forces also were striking westward toward Krasnodar, capital of Russian area, along the railway inside the Don River bend. They were speeding up the region between the railroad and the north bank of the Don During yesterday's operations Vasilika was occupied Medvezhaki, Wolf's Swamp, and Yerikin and Vyasovy—all points not far south of Velikoya and junction station Velikoya east of Likshaya.

The Red Army troops of Lt.-Gen. Rokossovsky are nearest Rostov, according to Russian reports, and are pushing on. This point Rostov sixty-five miles from the key communications port for Nazi forces in Southern Russia.

In the Central Caucasus north of the mountain range the Russians were making their swiftest strides on the heels of Germans who are dynamiting and spiking the forts in their withdrawal.

One Russian column pushing northwestward on both sides of the railway overran Stavio-Marinsky Mattorenvsky, Novo-Svetky, and Novo-Pavlovskaya to their capture Zolsky, only ten miles from Georgievsk.

A second force pushing without the north from captured Beregovy in the area above the railway had reaches Orlovsky and Pravokumsky, the latter approximately seventy miles northeast of Georgievsk.

ATTACKS SMASHED

In the Lower Don valley the Russians reported heavy Nazi counter-attacks, but said these are being smashed and the Red Army is continuing its four offensives, the first of which began November 19 on both sides of Stalingrad in the prodigious effort to reach Rostov.

The Russians had effected crossings the flat, ice-lying plains leading to the gateway city of the Caucasus—a terrain country difficult for any army to defend.

The Red Army was reported clearing out in several directions, aiming to create more pockets in which the Germans might be sealed for destruction.

One report said the Russians in the desolate Kalmyck Steppes and those in the Malenki-Morozovsk area of the North Caucasus made a combined advance of many miles' sweeping points only forty miles apart and gravely imperilling the German retreating from the Caucasus oil region.

The resulting Rostov, the Russians would cut off the enemy in the Caucasus.

The notorious villages fell in the North Caucasus. On the central front, the Russians said, they fortified regions—Velikie Luki—and repulsed counter-attacks south-west of Velikie Luki, where the Red Army was either in or near White Russia and advancing on Vitebsk.

The Germans tried with massed artillery, tank charges and attacks by mechanized infantry to stem the Russian momentum on the Lower Don, but dispatches said the Russians broke the enemy defence. This trend probably was on the banks of the Don, a tributary of the Lower Don which offered the best natural defence positions between the Russians and Rostov. Red planes and artillery were used in continuation to dive through the Nazi lines.

Strahlev is sixty-five miles east of Rostov and Russian forces were declared to have passed it.

Other Russian forces which had driven down the Caucasus by hacking Millerovo on the Moscow-Rostov Railway, were reported pressing the Russian-held Lower Don bank.

HEADLONG FLIGHT

Dispatches said the Germans had been in headlong flight in the North Caucasus, but recently developed a stiffening opposition. The army newspaper Red Star said the enemy attempted to stand at Stepnoye, but was attacked so strongly that a new retreat resulted. The Germans also were said to be burning their offensive in all sectors of the Caucasus, with tanks pursuing the enemy closely and smashing the attempts he made to stand.

The German forces surrounded between the Volga and Don was reported being ejected from positions some Stalingrad where eighteen more blockhouses and dugouts were captured. Red Star said that groups of Soviet troops were penetrating the ruins of the German pocket to Don, blasting the enemy out with hand grenades. Shock troops were said to have captured a hill in the Stalingrad area, killing 150.

A fierce Russian tanks engagement which won the Order of the Red Banner in the Battle of Odessa, was fought on the Leningrad front, combatting German efforts to supply their surrounded division by air. Red Star said this regiment alone downed fifty planes over Stalingrad and that Soviet artillerists controlled the skies in that region.

BEAT OFF GERMAN ATTACK ON CONVOY

midway between Spitsbergen and Norway.

EXTREME HAZARDS

The Admiralty said the successful convoy passage was made "in spite of almost continual darkness, extremely bad weather, exceptional hazards due to ice and low visibility and determined attacks by enemy aircraft. It was the first time since August that a convoy has passed under continued surface ships to attack the "unusable" flow of supplies to the Russian front.

The Admiralty said original contact was made by the cruiser Sheffield December 31 off the North Cape at the extreme tip of Norway. Besides the Sheffield there participated a cruiser and "a number of destroyers."

Capt. R. St. V. Sherbrooke in the Onslow led the destroyers into the fight, which was described as "one with great gallantry," the Admiralty said.

"In the semi-darkness and wintry weather further contact was frequently re-established, the convoy was thereby and engaged in low visibility, the enemy was driven off to the safety of their bases on the Norwegian coast."

of R. And should have entered Almonte slowly and stopped.

The inquest, which opened Thursday, continues Saturday.

The evidence was heard at the inquest into the death of Frank White, of Eastview, Ont., one of those killed in the collision. Presiding at the inquest was Dr. Emilie Lawson, supervising coroner for Ontario, and Dr. A. A. Metcalfe, local coroner. Every side of the case was put at the entrance to Almonte Sutton only told the train crew orders were in readiness for it at Almonte. The collision remained to keep a sharp lookout for another train in the station.

He added that by checking a timetable the troop train engineer could have ascertained the times required by local train to travel between Stanley Junction. Dr. Lawson observed that the local train was slowed by a defective engine.

Beck said the hospital train went to Almonte at 30 miles an hour and thirty minutes, although it had been a long time back to Carleton Place and turn there. This time was slow to that of the transcontinental fast train, and he considered the hospital train run "fast."

NO SPEEDOMETER

The troop train engineer had no speedometer to judge his speed between Almonte and Carleton Place.

"But he should have," interposed Dr. Lawson. When Beck said the engineer had rather low speed on the local by timetable schedule, Dr. Lawson observed that the engineer expected to judge the local's speed by the "feel" of the engine and from some of the cream of the country—young men in the troop train."

Earlier in the day the press gang of this accident to the engineer of 2107 "Engineer Killed After Wreck." W. Pollock, of Carleton Place, Crown prosecutor for Lanark County.

Dr. Emilie said the schedule speed of this train was exceeded," replied Beck.

Pollock said railway rules required the arrival of trains to be reported ahead of time. Before the local train arrived at Almonte, W. E. Collburne, the station operator, had to shut some doors to keep disturbed by a crowd, and then could report that the troop train was still in the local had arrived. Beck said such work might delay Collburne about three minutes.

Beck said the dispatcher would not have any notice that a car due in Almonte. With eight minutes to spare on the local to unload and proceed, he did not think there would have been much concern even had the arrival of the local at Almonte been reported immediately, and it was known that the troop train had left Arnprior, eastern and one-half hours before that.

Had the signal for the troop train at Almonte been red and not green, the troop train would have known there were orders for it.

The green light does not tell the engineer the local is ahead, Beck said.

"I think you better change it," remarked Dr. Lawson.

Had an operator been on duty at Pakenham, between Arnprior and Almonte, the accident might have been avoided, Beck said.

DEFENDS ENGINEER

Arthur Roebuck, K.C., representing the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said it would be unfair to blame the engineer for the accident had revealed the proper speed schedule if the leaving time of the local train at Almonte was not observed.

Beck agreed with Roebuck a train must not arrive at a station more than five minutes before the schedule.

Dr. J. A. McEwen, Carleton Place, said he had been called to Almonte after the accident and had inspected the injured. He had to be removed early as one drive, it was thought, for better if they were held for a few days in Almonte than to be carried train but only emergency treatment could be given in Almonte.

Dr. McEwen said he had no knowledge of the time the injured "Mackenzie King" had been done. A train being late was beneficial to many of those treated, he said. Dr. Metcalfe being moved in Ottawa. He had not gone to the hospital train should be held for any specific time after the accident.

Dr. A. A. Metcalfe, local coroner, said he was there he was consulted with Dr. Lawson in the coroner's inquiry on the work and efforts in the rescue he inquired.

"I told those at the wreck scene to get the dead and injured under cover without delay," said Dr. Metcalfe.

He believed some injured were put on the Montreal train at 11 p.m. and the Ottawa local at midnight. The town hall had been cleared of injured. Plug was put in the hospital train well out at 3.45 a.m. And Dr. Metcalfe believed they were more comfortable in the train.

The oil-operation of the CPR train was "wonderful," said Mr. Metcalfe.

now control only a comparatively narrow strip along the coast from Tripoli almost to the leading modern west toward Tunis and Bizerte.

A communique from Allied headquarters announced four enemy planes were shot down by anti-aircraft fire during several attempted attempts to raid our airfields and bases and one Axis bomber was destroyed last night.

It did not touch upon the Camel Corps victory.

British headquarters in Cairo announced during the day that Allied planes attacking Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's German army in its retreat in the west had machine-gunned his transport along a stretch of coast road, killing forty motor shot or Tripoli.

ABANDONING LINE

This indicated to some British observers that Rommel is preparing to abandon his previous line around Mareth El Hami, well in the east of Tripoli, and is on the march to the west again.

Cairo headquarters also announced that 37 planes of the Royal Hellenic Air Force, operating with the British Middle East Command, have been in action against the Axis powers since the outbreak of war.

Greek pilots have been based up to now advanced air bases in Egypt-Libya at a point not far from the ground crews, engineers and mechanics were not even bothering to carry away the debris of battle, British and German planes as they were flying overhead.

The most significant Allied action reported however was an attack on the Axis supply port of Benghazi in the Italian harbor at Palermo in Sicily, in which a new weapon of poison gas observed in the target area.

The Italian High Command admitted the force of the attack by reporting the city's dead were forty-six and the wounded 272. It was reported that these figures might later be raised.

American planes attacked Kalabrian, the inland Tunisian traffic junction through which the Nazis have been trying to supply their forces in Tunisia, and the Axis-held port of Gabes.

The RAF repeated that its forward anti-aircraft guns shot down four German planes raiding Allied advanced airdromes and that Nazi other German plane was destroyed last night.

The RAF lost two planes and the American one in attacking the bombers that attacked Gabes.

An air force spokesman announced that Allied headquarters established that the Axis power always or near the best destroyed in an attack on January 5.

SUFFERS INJURY

Queen Quay 522 Pingard Street, a Chinese, suffered a small cut on the back of the head when knocked down by a street car at the corner of Government and Pingard Streets last night at 8:15 o'clock. The Chinese was attended by Dr. Clayton, a naval doctor, who then removed to Royal Jubilee Hospital, where he was later reported to be making good progress.

The accident occurred when a street car operated by O. Thompson, 187 Crescent Road, crossed the junction of Government and Pingard Streets. The Chinese came out from between two parked cars and although the operator sounded the going he kept walking and was struck by the left-hand front corner of the car according to police reports.

Sixteen Distinguished Flying Crosses and Four Distinguished Flying Medals Awarded to Members of Royal Canadian Air Force

OTTAWA, Jan. 8 (CP)—The R.C.A.F. announced today the award of sixteen Distinguished Flying Crosses, one bar to the D.F.C., and four Distinguished Flying Medals to members of the crews of bombers which have been "shortening" explosives on enemy key points and harassing enemy shipping.

The names of pilots bombed, as contained in the citations granting the awards read like a railway timetable for enemy territory, Bramsh, Hamburg, Cologne, Essen, Rostock, Trondheim, Lille, Milan and Genoa are among them. Following are the award citations:

Leroy Carl Stevens, Round City, Man.

DARING SORTIES

Sqdn. Ldr. Sturdy received his D.F.C. for "a number of daring sorties," particularly on one occasion last July when his aircraft was damaged and set afire by anti-aircraft fire over the Ruhr. He put the blaze out and got his aircraft home in September he flew back from Bremen on three engines.

Two attacks on the German naval base at Trondheim, in Norway, were listed in the citation for the D.F.C. in Sqdn. Ldr. Grierson-Jackson whose ability as a navigator was commended.

Attacks on shipping won the D.F.C. for Flt. Lt. Kendall, now he became bombing leader and squadron navigation officer. In April his squadron has piled up twenty-six successful attacks resulting in serious damage to or destruction of enemy ships.

Flt. Lt. McCormack, of Estevan, Sask., was described in his citation as a highly skilled navigator and bomb aimer who participated in the 1,000-plane attack on Cologne and a similar operation against Bremen.

In the citation of P.O. Mackenzie now dead, was mention of the daylight raid on Le Creusot, France and the raid on Milan. P.O. Mackenzie also pressed home an attack on a target in Northern Germany despite bad weather and a hit by anti-aircraft fire.

The attacks on Le Creusot and Milan were also mentioned in the citation of P.O. Walker, of Blairmore, whose skill as a navigator was praised.

Finding a safe route through the valleys of the Alps when returning from a night attack, with the aircraft forced to fly at 8,000 feet, earned for D.F.C. for another navigator, P.O. Pierce, of Bracebridge.

RUNNING ACCOUNT

The running account given to him by pilots from the rear of the plane about the movements of an attacking aircraft won the same decoration for P.O. Craddock. It enabled the pilot to evasive actions and so escape the attacker. P.O. Craddock's rear gunner was also commended for helping bring an aircraft back from Hamburg on one engine.

Other row gunners decorated were

Air and Water Search Continuing for Missing Alaska-Bound Party

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Jan. 8 (A.P.)—An air and water search along the Southeastern Alaska and British Columbia coasts today was to close any clue to the fate of Harold Gillam, veteran Alaska commercial pilot, and the five passengers aboard the plane missing since Tuesday.

From Ketchikan, a coast guard official reported that Gillam reported from his plane Tuesday that one of his land planes was engine trouble was "cooking out." but he failed to give his position. The plane was northbound from Seattle.

The coast guard search, under the search by planes and surface vessels was turning almost wholly to the British Columbia coast line with Gillam's last sighting "very big, inlet and island."

All Navy, Canadian Air Force bases on the British Columbia coast joined in the wide search for the missing forty-year-old flyer, pilot and his passengers.

Friends and associates pointed their hopes on Gillam's many dead-reckoning experiences in Northland flying which have earned him the title of "Thrill 'em—Spill 'em—No-kill 'em Gillam." And they said they hoped that the continued silence merely meant that as in several of his previous forced landings and set-downs to avoid bad weather, Gillam had damaged his wireless equipment.

VICTORIA'S CENTENARY

Victoria will mark its hundredth year, not as a corporation but as a British settlement on the North Pacific Coast, this year at a date in middle March. The request has already been made that the Dominion recognize the anniversary with a special set of commemorative postage stamps. Other plans are, of course, in train locally. While the occasion will look more to what by occurring in the middle of a war, it is right and fitting that the milestone be observed, Fort Camosun was to a real extent the birthplace of the Province of British Columbia.

Several wars and not a few dispositions have roiled over this country since Sir James Douglas, then an official of the Hudson's Bay Company, is said under the oaks at Beacon Hill, from a landing made on an outer beach on what is now known as Dallas Road. He crossed the parkline area, and, arriving at the lakewater into which was then an Indian village picked out the site for the fort. That was in 1843, a year later, in March, 1843, Douglas returned and saw the construction of the fort under way.

Sir James Douglas had an already vigorous mind. What this Province owes to him personally has not yet been adequately expressed. It was much. At first outside of the stockaded fort, and later outside of it, a pioneering settlement grew. In the days when ships had whitewings, and when traffic over the roughest roads was extremely primitive British families arrived at the old fort by way of San Francisco. Many brought their household furniture in ships that coasted in voluminous bores. At one time there was a shortage of wives, and a "bride ship" dropped anchor in the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

The discovery of gold in the Interior brought a rush of men, and frontier conditions quickly grew, almost overnight, into a tent-town, with some 10,000 transient inhabitants. Miners with their packs outfitted here, and began the long journey up the Fraser River. Sir James, for a while, was judge, jury, government, exchequer and a good many other things, until a regular civil rule could was established. The first parliament of the Crown Colony of Vancouver Island had six members, and they were wise and able men. The Crown Colony of British Columbia was added, and the two Crown Colonies united. As a full-fledged Province of Canada, British Columbia joined the Confederation. This newspaper — now in its eighty-fifth year — championed that union, and campaigned vigorously for it.

British Columbia has seen good times and bad times since Sterling bloomed in Victoria, and died out again. Wealth was entered, and salmon became an industry. First the capital still of the Crown Colony of Vancouver Island, and then that of British Columbia, Victoria has shared the British Columbia grow in wealth and importance as the years have gone by. As the provincial capital and also as a favored city on the west coast, this community is very closely bound up with the last hundred years; knows its own history, and has some rights in the matter. As Fort Where we stand, the next hundred years seem even more promising, but let us not forget the tribute we owe to the past. The pioneers were real men and women. In so far as the means were theirs, they built well.

It would do no harm, and perhaps some good, to examine what were some of the outstanding qualities of those who pioneered in this continent, and in British Columbia. They were, in the main, God-fearing people. They worked with whatever materials they found at hand, and they helped one another. They were proud of their British blood, and were loyal, likewise, to Canada. They have remained so, through the years, and more than one local catastrophe, including an epidemic which almost wiped out the settlement.

Efforts have been made in the past to fit Victoria into some cramped mould of social character. But Victoria, to those who know it well, has remained itself. It is independent, and sober-thinking. It has not lost its head in wealth, nor climbed on any band-wagons. It values the arts and the sciences, and has produced men and women who have gone far in both. It has been called both proud and haughty by those who did not know it. The seat of the local government, Victoria has studied its legislatures with both eyes and pandered to none of them. At heart it is warm, courteous and friendly, valuing many of those qualities in life which enrich human living in the climate it has been specially favored, and in a setting it has remained settled and calm. Beyond that, Victoria is ready for the next hundred years, and will meet them, equitably and calmly, halfway. For it is not for nothing that Victoria has been called the city of sunshine, homes and of flowers.

TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN

Accustomed to judge warfare by positions reached on the ground, the general public is inclined to display some impatience with the progress of the United Nations in the Tunisian campaign. A closer understanding of the nature of the terrain, where the Allies are in rugged hills and the Axis entrenched on a broad coastal plain, would obviate this impatience, and restore a clearer perspective of what actually is going on.

All that has taken place so far in Tunisia can be accounted for by what is known as reconnaissance fighting. To this, armed patrols of greater or lesser strength, are pushed out to the weakest spots, and on either side. The Axis has been successful in holding off initial Allied attempts to sever their force by a direct rail to the coast between Tunis and Bizerte, and has had some success, too, in keeping the fighting in the outpost hills around the semi-circular position.

The enemy's over-all position, however, is a desperate one. His back is to the water, and that water is passing more and more firmly into the hands of the United Nations daily. The Allies could, if they wished, encircle the enemy's position, and wait. Attrition and hunger would do the rest. If the enemy's main supplies were cut off by Water and by air. That thing is being done now, but it is extremely doubtful if the Allies will wait for attrition alone to close out the last Axis stronghold in North Africa. When the right time has come our troops will move forward, and the battle will be on.

Not even the Tunisian campaign, combined with the 900-mile flight of Rommel's force in Libya, can be considered out of its appropriate position of a global war. Behind the lines the enemy is no doubt feverishly attempting to safeguard the south coast of Europe. Behind the lines, we are taking such further future events will portray. Upon the outcome of decisions being made now the progress of the war six months from now will rest, and then it will be seen that there were good reasons for taking the campaign steadily and cautiously as is now the case. For war is no longer a case of set positions occupied on the ground, so much as the striking strength and calibre of whole nations under arms. In that realm our trust, and it is there that our cause is sure.

There is another, and lesser, consideration in the case in so far as Tunisia is concerned. It is evident that one day we shall need the ports of Tunis and Bizerte, now in the enemy's hands. The more that we have to demolish them by actual bombardment, the longer will be the ultimate delay in restoring them to use. The enemy knows that, too, and to some extent is taking a ripe advantage of the situation. For the moment, however, it cannot be helped. For what is being prepared in North Africa is a broad base for all future Allied operations in the western end of the Mediterranean pool. That requires time, nor can it be hurried.

VICTORY GARDENS

The reminder over the signature of Mr. W. H. Warren, Victoria Parks Superintendent, that all help in the matter of vegetables and garden produce can, and should, begin at home is direct and timely. As Mr. Warren points out, consideration of supply may be more interrupted in 1943 than they were in, and, meanwhile, there is much that the average home owner or householder can do to insure a supply of fresh vegetables and some fruits during much of the coming year.

It is something of a pity that more official interest has not been taken in the efforts of such bodies as the Victory Garden Committee, set up by the Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture, and in the fourth year of the war, British Columbia is still in the toils of girded efforts, and the old-time policy of restriction and conservation has not yet given up the ghost of shead production in all necessary directions is the deavor.

For ours, both in truck gardens and in some other things, lies within the hands of the people themselves. If there is any difference between a garden grown in the rich soil of the country in the Interior, and one grown in the back garden at home, it is very, very slight. Weighing all the facts, the home-grown product comes closer to being the victory product, because less time has been expended on it, and fewer men disengaged from war-time employment. The soil is a constant a friend that it will yield wherever lye is added or entrusted to it, and a little work done in the cultivation of it.

Without waiting for any word of command, by numbers or otherwise, property owners should take steps to plan their gardens for the year. Vacant lots are to be secured from the city upon favorable terms, and there is no real scarcity of land, either within the city limits or outside of it. In many instances, the City of Victoria will be able to meet those who wish to cultivate vacant lands in its possession with satisfactory arrangements as to water for irrigation purposes.

It so happens that many of the vegetables required in the average household are grown successfully at home, and without a great deal of trouble. The soil of this area is the course of wisdom, and also it will help the country in the over-all war by taking care of some of the actual food requirements which might develop. For food can be grown, whereas fuel cannot. In particular, self-help is the best form of aid, and the people is one that each one may apply at home

The several Departments of Agriculture could and should assist by giving advice in such a proposal, and could be very helpful if they would follow their lead in one or two pamphlets telling out what is practicable for the average-sized suburban lot. Truck gardens would not only be beneficial this year, but could be managed, could also cut down some of the particularly cost of household foods. Mr. Warren is to be commended for the practical suggestion, one which should be widely followed.

SHOELD RESCIND ORDER

From one end of Canada to the other now Ottawa has been told that the twelve-months leasehold clause in rental contracts will not work, and that those results which it aimed at would only be denied by practicable in all this practicable remedy. The reasons for this are many, but they have been lainly stated. The primary one is that a year's postponement of property sales would prohibit all sales. It is for the Crown to prepare a remedy that will protect tenants without hamstringing home owners at the same time.

The problem should not prove insoluble. Through local rental boards, including members of the judiciary, Ottawa has a large and machinery of review at hand, capable, in the special emergency circumstances. The former three months' notice was not unreasonable, in cases where there was a genuine need to dispose of the property. The Crown can do much, but it cannot quite order all of the circumstances of private lives. It cannot say to the individual sell, and to that individual on but sell

Note and Comment

By SANDHAM GRAVES

We are a clock-conscious race, the human species. We do not as a rule take our time from the sun, nor indeed, from anything so bright, healthful and pleasant. No, we consult a mechanical contrivance, a mere affair of wheels and spindles, which talks to itself in monotonous mutterings of deadly persistence and monotony. Tick, tock, tick, tock. All that we can learn from that is that so many seconds, of a particular minute and in a certain hour have passed, never to return again. The annoying thing about a watch is, however, is that all of its pesky seconds are of the same length. Its sentient being that is intolerable!

What individual is there who does not know that most of life's moments are of vastly different lengths? Take sixty seconds when we are waiting for a report on the life of one we love. What a collection of eternities are there! Take that second or two in which the young woman of dreams was before replying to a certain young man on the lifelong matter of her affections. Take that second, indeed, in which machine guns have found the range, but have not yet established the distance. Seconds did I say? They are years, every single one of them.

Time works the other way, too. Who is there who cannot recall how that Lisa knows, when he lay on his back, in childhood, gazing up at the azure summer skies? Minutes were seconds then, and hours were unaccountably long hours. It refreshed only a second to reach the swimming pool, yet that was a good half mile away. One could follow the whole course of some accustomed route in such, in a single minute, or so he had supposed. Now, as each day passed, with one intermission, perhaps one for a period of months.

Don't tell me that an hour has sixty seconds! I want to know the tables and some fruits during much of the coming year. hours or weeks, or years even! You look at that pale-faced thing, a watch, and how much time all its seconds were alike, and each the occasion for a dry, mechanical tick! It has human values, and they are elusive, for what values there are, are never time by itself, a disembodied thing. It is measured only by the individual, who is conscious of its passing.

Oh, I know what sayonara say about the time-space relativity, and has—ancient and modern—men have even, in their time, stretched out as in one piece, with human beings thrown in for brief end trifling contact with it. Time, to such men, is only an abstraction, or, worst, a commodity, which can be sold in one butter. That is what the watch does. It slices its movement into dry portions, holding each of precisely the same value. It clears its throat and coughs and spits as if only watches mattered, and men were nothing or less than watches. I don't tell thee to me! I want to time has no value except as it is used is shown. The sum total of life may be grasped by a man who knows that rather think that it is Now, when we look our time from it was different. As children, you know, we did not. A day was a sun's march around the heavens. The day-to-day was a little interval before lunch, or supper. The week was only a day with seven play days. Until one came, and then even the seconds had to be long ones. At first, we hated those measured seconds, but by the time we had left the watch deals in! But at the end at long last we shall have all the time we wants—when time for us slips back into the space continuum, and has become an expression ourselves!

General Douglas MacArthur on returning to his general headquarters from the campaign in the Papua Peninsula announced that an army of approximately 15,000 now is being developed, highly practised the ranks of the American Thirty-second and Forty-first Divisions and the Fifth Australian Division.

The Japanese convoy first was sighted by an Allied plane January 3 when it was forty miles off Buna, Britain, in whose harbor of Rabaul the Japanese have been known to be concentrating shipping.

ANNOUNCED SINKING

The noon communique of January 7 announced that 4 transports, 3 troops, had been sunk along with another transport and that a fifth had been damaged by dredly-laden Allied bombers.

Before the aerial attack was twenty-four hours old the Lockheed Lightnings of the Australian Royal Air Force, and the United Liberators Consolidated Catalinas of Flying Fortresses, North American Mitchells, Martin Marauders and Lockheed Lightnings

The Japanese communique also listed fighters Japanese Zeros destroyed in the air, and that it probably destroyed as the enemy made a desperate effort to relieve the ships aerial cover.

ENEMY LOSSES HEAVY

MELBOURNE Jan. 8 (CP).—Allied losses in the campaign which drove the Japanese back across the Owen Stanley Mountains have not been announced.

Up to December 1, however, the Australians had lost 640 killed and 1,350 wounded, and three American brigadier generals had been killed.

Japanese losses have not been fully counted, and they may never be accurately known in the jungle method of fighting in the tall trees and dense undergrowth. The official Allied count of Japanese dead so-far is 2,640. But many other hundreds of enemy killed, as estimated by Allied commanders in various sectors, are not included in this total. The headquarters communique said yesterday Allies on the New Guinea war to date include 760 planes shot down and fifty-five destroyed on the ground. Eastern Allied planes have been reported missing in action.

The enemy's naval losses include two cruisers, six destroyers, ten transports and supply vessels, a gunboat and large numbers of smaller craft. In addition scores of ships have been damaged.

FOUNDERED IN WINTER STORM

Ratepayers Plan Protest Meeting

Claimant Lost With Fifty-Six Lives Forty Years Ago Yesterday

Forty years ago yesterday one of the worst marine disasters in the history of the Northwest occurred within a short distance of Victoria when the Sir Claiborn in the service of the Puget Sound Navigation Company plying between Seattle and way ports in Victoria became helpless off Clover Point in a storm of southeast gale.

Lost with the Claiborn in the wreck was 56 persons, including the crew of 30. Several Victorians who had friends aboard. When first seen the Claiborn, only a few off the bustling ways, was "making heavy weather of it," and shortly after stopped to be unable to make headway against the storm. It remained later that the ship's engines had failed, forcing the captain to hoist a skysail, and hoped the craft was carrying for just such an emergency, in an effort to keep her head on and so seek shelter between San Juan and Lopez Islands of the San Juan group.

The last seen of the Claiborn alive was shortly before dusk while she was running before the wind towards an expected haven. Instead of finding a quiet harbor or the lee of an island to shelter from the fury of the storm the ferry boat, crushed on Sandy's Island, where she foundered after practically sailing itself. No news of what had happened to the Claiborn was heard until the next day, and it was two days later before any clear account of her fateful action was available.

Unfortunately, when the Claiborn was seen to be in difficulties in the late afternoon of January 8 of Tug Island there were no tugs in either Victoria or Port Townsend available to go to the ferry boat's assistance. Victoria's tug was on the Esquimalt, all of which could has been sent out hastily, but no tugs answered of them, and as the naval authorities had not been advised of the Claiborn's plight, they refrained from another. Fifty-six lives were lost, 32 passengers and ten members of the crew.

AMONG VICTORIANS

Prominent among the passengers well known in Victoria to lose their lives in the Claiborn disaster were Mr. F. Shaw, mining engineer and Mrs. Shaw, brother-in-law of C. H. Lugrin, then editor of The Colonist; Homer M. Swaney, mining man interested in the mining of coal here and the establishment of a steel mill in this vicinity; Captain Livingstone Thompson, provincial fish surveyor and Captain Tom Lawrence, local navigator.

Among travelers who intended to take the ill-fated boat that fatal afternoon and missed the sailing were Mr. R. P. Green, Minister of Lands for British Columbia and now of the Canadian Senate; Harry Wright and E. J. Fraser members of the British Columbia Legislature.

A Duke who has been a resident of Victoria for a good many years and it probably the oldest employee of the Pacific Coast is a survivor of the sinking. He was employed in the steward's department aboard the Claiborn.

In support of his plan to change the ward boundaries in Saanich, and in protest against opposition to the plan, a public meeting of ratepayers in the inner wards will be held tonight, Councillor K. W. Hardwood, of Ward 7, said yesterday.

"The action of Councillor J. L. Hoobs, Ward 3, to block me in carrying out my plan to change the boundaries in Saanich has aroused interest in the inner wards of the municipality," Councillor Richmond asserted.

"Last month I brought forward a motion that the municipality be divided into wards of more equal membership. This would mean that inner wards would have greater representation on the council. The motion brought protests from the outer ward councillors and culminated in this week's council meeting in a notice of motion by Councillor Hobbs to approach the Provincial Government to have the act enlarged. As the act stands it is compulsory for the council to carry out my request."

PIONEER MINISTER

Mr. Goodfellow speaking at the annual meeting of the provincial organization, discussed the life of Rev. Robert Jamieson, the first Presbyterian minister to come to British Columbia, who arrived in Victoria in 1861.

During 1942 an excellent group of travel pictures appeared before the local group, according to the annual report read by the City Centre's honorary secretary. Anniversaries of prominent events in British Columbia's history were observed and addressed by delegates played a large part in the year's activities, the report said.

Last year 174 residents of Victoria died, more than fifty years died, according to a report prepared by Miss Russell. Short biographies of several of these persons were read.

An interesting series of slides, in which photographs of pioneers and early scenes of Victoria were reproduced, was presented by Miss [illegible].

STORES LIMITING SALE OF MATCHES

Matches, scarce for a time in the early days of the city, are again becoming available in quantity but at present stores are limited to one package or large box per customer.

The stores which sold a week's supply of matches on Monday alone, managers reported yesterday, is reduced in order to maintain their stocks. Many customers were reported as showing hostile resentment sufficient for several months.

Another cause for the buying rush started in the downtown markets is reported. That some of the smaller outlying stores were sold out.

ARTISTS PLAY SUPERB MUSIC

Jan and Mischel Cherniavsky Assist Canadian Aid to Russia Fund

The concert last night at the Royal Victoria Theatre by eminent Russian musicians Jan Cherniavsky, pianist, and Mischel Cherniavsky, cellist, was a memorable and completely satisfying musical event. It has been many years since the famous brothers have played in concert together in this city, and that Victorians ardently welcomed their return was evidenced by the rounds of applause with which they were greeted.

The artists appeared under the auspices of the Victoria Committee of the Canadian Aid to Russia Fund, in support of which cause the concert was given. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia and Mrs. W. C. Woodward were in attendance, as well as many other distinguished sponsors of the Aid to Russia Fund. During the intermission R. W. Mayhew, M.P., voiced an appeal for continued support of the fund, stating that to date Victoria contributions amount to $40,000. He urged that "we go home from pull our full weight," adding that in this city a worthy cause never lacks support and that the work of the Canadian Aid to Russia Fund will not duplicate in any way that of the Red Cross. Mr. Mayhew was introduced by Mrs. H. P. Hodges, M.P.P., vice-chairman of the Victoria committee.

THE PROGRAMME

The artistry of Jan and Mischel Cherniavsky's ensemble of solo work will long be remembered by those who were privileged to hear their programme. As was expected in opening on this occasion, the piano genius of the contemporary Russian composers, Shostakovitch, Polowinkin and Zeitlonskaia, intermingled with that of the classic masters, Beethoven and Bach and the romantic Chopin. The opening Beethoven Sonata for Piano and 'Cello in A Major, Op. 69, established firstly the high plane on which the whole concert was based. Beautiful tone tone and full of song in the Adagio Cantabile, which shifts suddenly into the racing pace of the allegro vivace. Piano and cello had "much fun" in the Scherzo—and there was plenty of it—and brought the opening movement of varying moods to a splendid close. The performance was polished as only artists can "polish" and a fine example of ensemble playing.

The brilliant pianistic gifts of Jan Cherniavsky are to on well known in Victoria to need elucidating. Superb technique and mastery of his chosen instrument were revealed perfectly in his performance of the Bach Organ Prelude and Fugue in D Major, which must have stirred and thrilled all the Bach lovers in the audience. The crystaline clarity of the fugue, which, from a single theme in moderate dance rhythm into a complex and massive movement of surging sound, was dynamic in its intensity. The artist, before embarking on this great work gave the dainty and delightfully rhythmic Gavotte" (Bach-Saint-Saens).

ILLUSTRATIVE CHORDS

The cellist chose for his first appearance as soloist "Variations Rococo" (Bonnani), a brief, masterful and perfectly delightful early composition in variations on the pastime theme being seemingly played with a double bass the master's own opposite in his Hebrew melody "Kol Nidrei" (Bruch). Bach To end a veal his brilliant side the artist chose "Guitarre" (Moskowski) and "Papillon" (Popper). He received great applause and had to give encores—"Minuet" (Beethoven-Auer), "Rondo" (Borchevitch) and "Gavotte in G" (Bretherne).

It was in Jan Cherniavsky's second group that the works by Russian composers were introduced. "Four Preludes" (Shostakovitch) were played, their dissimilarity being most fascinating. The descriptive "Village by the Stream," (Polowinkin) followed, and then the flying "Toccata," by Zeitlobinsky.

Nothing could have been more beautiful than the Chopin Nocturne in F Sharp Major which followed. It was sensitive and delicately ordered. His last number on the programme was the familiar "Polonaise," Op. 53: A Flat. This is a work which will stand the test of time as it appeals to the erudite musician as well as those "who like music." Much applause on this de cision could not fail to thrill the listener. Being recalled again and again the pianist graciously added two Russian numbers by Iaiden, "In Memory of Rubina" and a spirited dance, the former seeming to speak of a wanderer's longing for his homeland.

Both were enjoyed so much that the pianist graciously consented to perform the dazzling Chopin Waltz in E Minor.

As one artist has aptly said: "Stream and Rain are for the salon, but Chopin waltzes are for the soul."

What Today Means

"CAPRICORN"

If January 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date will be from 9:18 to 11:15 a.m., from 5:15 to 5:18 p.m. and from 7:15 to 9:15 p.m. The darker periods will be from 7:18 to 9:18 a.m., from 5:18 to 7:18 p.m. and from 9:15 to 11:15 p.m.

The promptings of love or friendship may be responsible for your doing many things on January 9 that you would not do ordinarily. By displaying consideration for others you may experience a sense of great satisfaction and find yourself benefited in many ways. There ought to be many incidents or occurrences of business circles on this date, and this is apt to result in strengthening of business relationships—especially between distributors and jobbers. This should be an auspicious day for people having social aspirations, to advance their aims by extending invitations or paying visits. Conditions make it advisable for everyone to live up to duty's call as well as the letter of the law if legal entanglements are to be avoided. Married and engaged couples and those making matrimonial plans for the future must set common sense and intuitive guide them if they expect to steer clear of trouble.

If you are a woman and January 9 is your birthday do not be insincere in a desire to spare the feelings of others or to please them if ought to be possible for you to tell the truth in a tactful way that will not prove offensive, so put on your thinking cap whenever confronted with the necessity for telling it. You may take offence too easily when someone disagrees with you and refuses to accept your opinion as being antagonistic. Your efforts in missionary, literary, educational, musical, histrionic, medical, dental, dietetical, technical, government or specialized work, should enable you to win recognition and a substantial reward without difficulty. With your help and encouragement, your husband ought to fulfil your fondest expectations and make you an ideal mate.

The child born on January 9 often is inclined to be a serious-minded youngster whose intellectual development frequently is in advance of his years. Every effort should be made to interest this child in studies and to encourage him to associate with children his own age rather than with those who are older. Parental hopes and ambitions for Capricorn children generally are fulfilled in a manner that more than compensates them for any sacrifices they have made to give them educational and cultural advantages.

If you are a man and January 9 is your natal day your leadership instincts should enable you to become most successful in any activity requiring you to direct the work of others. As a superintendent, business executive, factory operator, chemist, engineer, clergyman, salesman, builder, contact man, journalist, educator, scientist, or in the army or navy, you ought to do more than hold your own and you should win an enviable reputation.

QUITE URGENT

A certain officer's confidential report had written on it, by his commanding officer: "This officer should go far."

The Brigadier added, "The farther the better," and finally the divisional commander wrote: "He should start at once."

Glancing Over Sport

By JOE DELAHUNTY

TODAY'S WINNERS

English Rugby and football will hold the spotlight on today's local sports menu, while in the East a pair of the National Hockey League games are scheduled . . . First major championship in the Barnard Cup races will be decided at Macdonald Park this afternoon when the Army clashes with Royal Air Force to what should be a real first-class exhibition. Here's how the situation looks at present: If the Flyers win or even gain a tie they will capture the honors, while a reverse will give the title to the soldiers; that's how close the race is. It's a tough one to pick, but I will give the soldiers the edge by three points . . . On-the-soccer pitch, it will be the league-leading V.M.D. eleven vs. the Navy at the Athletic Park, and the Royal Air Force vs. Army at Bullen Park. The sailors have been strengthened for the match and will be all out to beat the shipbuilders. I figure it will end in a stalemate. The Bullen Park engagement will also be a close one, but I will take the Army by an odd goal. . . . On the hockey front the Red Wings invade the lair of the Maple Leafs, and the Bruins skip forth to Montreal to meet the Canadiens. Toronto is always a tough nut to crack at home, so my tip the Leafs by two goals. Boston should not have much trouble with the Seville-place Canadiens, so take it Away Art Ross with three markers to spare. That's my list of "sure things" and my betting average since January 1 is exactly 500, so it should be well bolstered today.

ODDS AND ENDS

Received a delayed Christmas card from my old friend Al Sachse, former well-known soccer player and amateur boxer, who has been overseas with the forces since the start of the war. Al was wounded during one of the Nazi air raids over London some time ago, but has long since recovered. He is now in the postal service, which is nothing to worry him, for he walked the beat here for the local postoffice before giving up the mail bag for the uniform. Al sends his best wishes to all his old friends and says he will be back when the Allies get rid of Mr. Hitler, Tojo, Mussolini & Company . . . Some basketball teams in the United States have struck a new idea of playing games with clubs in their home city. They play it by mail and here's how they do it: Each member takes twenty - five free throws and then the scores are mailed immediately on completion to each other . . . Fifty head of cattle are now grazing on the once immaculate greens and fairways of the Augusta National Golf Club, course scene of the annual masters' tournament. Club members last April decided to discontinue the tournaments for the duration. The course wasn't doing anyone a bit of good just idle ground," explaining Bobby Jones, former emperor of golf and now a captain in the army air force. "So we thought we would add it to grazing lands available for the war effort." Bobby laid out the course several years ago. . . . There certainly isn't much to choose between the Air Force and Army cage teams. View the quintettes have battled into overtime before the Flyers came out on top, and a like number of times the score has been so close it was anybody's game up to the final whistle. These clubs should stage a great play-off series, if they reach the final round, to see which will fly Victoria's colors against Vancouver in the provincial eliminations.

ANSWERING MR. CHURCH

I wouldn't say that the result of that hotly-contested football match between Victoria and Vancouver was expected, for the eleven on paper looked as if it would hold its own with anything on the Mainland. One thing we didn't expect during the game and that was the fine form shown by Trevor Harvey, who raced through the local defence for three "big" goals. Harvey turned in a sensational performance, one of the best seen on a British Columbia soccer field for a long time.

Victoria was weak in spots, in fact, very weak, and possibly that's why couldn't hold Harvey in check. I agree with you, Mr. Church, about all-star teams; they must have several workouts together and have an understanding of each other's play, otherwise, when it comes to game time the players will be roaming all over the field. Yes cannot blame the selection committee for they did their best and did it in good faith, and without favoritism to any one team or player. Selecting one team on blue to make the Mainland eleven wouldn't be fair to other individuals who deserve a place on the representative side.

Lesser must be looked after first, we all agree with you there, Mr. Church, and don't think for one second that the officials are not working hard in the best interest of the sport.

That's my answer to the letter which appeared in this column yesterday and while I did not have space enough to comment a spot.

Doctor Halts Mix In Seventh Round

Bob Montgomery Awarded Technical Kayo Over Chester Rico When Physician Steps In and Halts Proceedings—Loser Bleeding Badly From Cut Over the Eye

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (AP).—Bob Montgomery, rugged Philadelphian veteran, gleaned a long step up the lightweight title elimination trail tonight by supplying Chester Rico, also of Philadelphia, with a severe beating over the 10-round route in a badly cut left eye at Madison Square Garden. Montgomery weighed 134½, Rico, 133½.

After being outclassed for three rounds by Rico's flashy speed, Montgomery opened the cut over the eye early in the fourth and by the seventh the blood was pouring out so freely, smearing both battler, and the referee, Dan D. Wyllie and Walker, State Athletic Commission physician, called a halt to the proceedings.

Dr. Walker was summoned into the ring by Referee Eddie Josephs when the seventh round ended and ruled that it would be dangerous for Rico to continue.

For the seven completed rounds Rico had a slight edge on The Associated Press score card winning four of them to Philadelphia's two. Two of Rico's winning sessions however, were given him by Referee Josephs when he spied Montgomery landing low punches. These were the second and sixth bouts.

A crowd of 10,415 contributed to a gate gate of $21,781.

VICTORY RECOGNIZED

The victory was recognized by both the New York State Athletic Commission and the National Boxing Association in the eliminations looking toward straightening out the lightweight mix-up that occurred when Sammy Angott retired several months ago.

The New York fistic fathers have been and others are leading the life of country gentlemen.

We conveniently overlooked the fact that a busy pro often spent his hours a day sweltering on a sun-baked practice tee trying to teach a hungry old pro to keep his left arm straight when the cause was inadequate muscle arms of the lumpy old gent had long ago developed a permanent crook from attempting to be the owner of a two-fisted drinking. Or saying to a human mature, "That's better, you only missed it six inches that time" . . . We also conveniently overlooked the enthusiastic listening to the endless wails in the locker room, and handing out free advice.

It was a nice job, but a tough job, and it's a job we're more in many cases. So a grand bunch of fellows find themselves out in the cold because human frailties must say:

We could have a game of golf today If the course was in order, and we could get caddies and we could get out to the club, which is closed anyway."

THE EXPERT SAYS

Bill (Wagon Wheels) Gayner—"A quartette of first-year hockeys in the Toronto Canadian Hockey Association who have all the earmarks of future professional material are Goalie Phillips and Bill Goodyear of Niagara Falls Cataracts, Theodore Kennedy, of Port Colborne, and Gleve Worthy, of St Catharines. All four have delivered nicely to date and each has plenty of time to become thoroughly seasoned before getting into pro ranks." Gordon would have made a good Sherlock Holmes assistant but for passport difficulties.

INCIDENTALLY

Moncion acquired a taste for high-class hockey in the Allan Cup days of the famous Moncion Hawks, but have been without hockey for two seasonal because the air force is using the Stadium as a storage building . . . Even with a wealth of hockey material at RCAF stations in the Moncion area, fans have a chance to appease their puck appetites somewhat from the boards of outdoor rinks . . . Ken Lindsay, of Vancouver, made a good impression on Portland, Ore., fans January 1, although he lost a decision to Hamsworth Champion Manuel Ortiz . . . Promoter Joe Waterman offered Lindsay a bout with Former Champion Lou Salica in Portland January 26, but Ken enters the R.C.A.F. January 20, Arnold Bevitam, Lindsay's manager, Jack Hamsworth and Salica fights can be obtained from the air-force

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Sports Story Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Mel Ott was a visitor in our town yesterday and he re-enacted the scene of a year ago, when he was introduced as the new manager of the Giants . . . A double row of sports writers gathered around Eddie Brannick's big desk while Mel took over the club secretary's chair.

The questions were mostly about training sites. He was sure the Polo Grounds wouldn't be suitable for spring training.

"I have just begun to look for a nearby site and when someone presented me a definition of "nearby," Mel parried, "I'll have to get out the maps to measure the distance between the boundaries of the Polonaise."

Someone thought of telephoning Branch Rickey and if they found that Yale still is 1-8-5 on the Dodgers list of training sites.

PICK-UPS

The reason for opening the major league season on Wednesday under the revised schedule is that Good Friday falls on the first week. Clubs that want to skip that day can get either complete their first series or delay their home opening until Saturday.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Gordon Gilmore, St Paul Pioneer-Press: "Right now the small baseball officers are the many bathers shivering on the edge of an icy pool, dreading the plunge, knowing it will be torture but not daring to go back out for fear of being called a sissy. If it was definitely decided along and say no swimming allowed, they'd act sensible and be glad for the chance."

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (AP).—Umpire Bill Stewart, who was the first pro baseball player to enlist in the present war, has come around to the conclusion that sports are going to stay on the home folks can "let off steam and forget their chief cares," and those things usually land right on Bill's bald head.

QUOTE, ENQUOTE

Joe Cronin (on route to the New Red Cross job at Pearl Harbor): "There is a lot of difference in the physical condition of the average ball player of today when he reports for spring workouts as compared to the shape in which the average player reported, say, ten or fifteen years ago. Very few players let themselves get far out of condition now."

Flyers Former Major League Hockey Goal Tender, Has All but Won Gallant Fight Against Paralysis—Young Ontario Players Showing Great Promise

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 8 (CP).—Bill Taugher, the hockey goalkeeper who "never would walk again," has all but won a gallant fight against paralysis.

After playing junior hockey in Kingston, Ont., sixteen years ago, Bill turned professional with Hamilton and was later with Buffalo in the old International League. Ten years ago he was struck on the head by a puck and four years later the injury began to bother him. A year ago he was stricken.

A growth had formed near his brain and on the operating table it slithered him stole his sight, left him paralyzed. It was feared he would never walk again, but Bill refused to abandon hope. A Toronto brain specialist performed a delicate and successful operation last March but Taugher still had far to go toward recovery. Now his indomitable spirit is returning him to normalcy.

Bill celebrated Christmas at Kingston by walking with his two overjoyed daughters. It was to game the former goalie "Thanks to God" the best Christmas gift man ever had."

Bill (Wagon Wheels) Gayner—"A quartette of first-year hockeys in the Toronto Canadian Hockey Association who have all the

PLENTY OF GOALS

The third period was the hottest of the five-game contest, and goals came thick and fast. Both clubs threw everything they had at the opposing goalie, and when the V.M.D. boys drove home four markers in quick succession 6-5, the fans had visions of the game really lightening up.

But that was their final effort, and before the fixture ended the Army had set back with a scarcity of tallies for their 13-8 triumph.

Five penalties were meted out during the game, with the V.M.D. drawing the odd trip to the "cooler."

EXPLANATION TO YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

The Mountain of Salt—Ref el Melah (Rock of Salt) is a formidable phenomenon near Tagbouit, in the Algerian Sahara. The mountain, which consists of solid salt, is 1½ miles in circumference, contains millions of tons of salt, and is washed by a river strongly impregnated with the salt. It is crystallized with cracks in which house thousands of pigeons the same color as the mountain. When the hot Sahara sun strikes it, its reflection of light is that of a gigantic diamond.

List Was Ragged From the Start

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (AP)—Scattered firm spots persisted today in utilities, rails farm implements and aircrafts, although many stock market leaders elsewhere displayed notable come-back reluctance.

The list was ragged from the start and irregular tendencies ruled at the close. Variations ranged from fractions to a point or more.

Due to large blocks of low-priced issues, it was the liveliest day of the year. Transfers totaled 801,130 shares compared with 710,770 Thursday. The Associated Press average of sixty stocks was up 1 of a point at 41.8, with the utility composite at a new top of the year.

Of 767 stocks traded 361 were up and 406 down or unchanged.

Stocks at 1942-43 peaks included International Telephone, General Gas & Electric "A," United Corp. Preferred, Willys-Overland, Oliver Farm, Radio Corp and Standard Brands.

Prominent on the upside were American Power & Light—$5 Preferred, Consolidated Edison, North American, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Chesapeake & Ohio, Caterpillar Tractor, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Commonwealth & Southern Preferred and Texas Co.

Selling dried up in yesterday's freak amusements but Loew's added another 1-2 points to its decline. In the baling division were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Standard Oil (N.J.), Westinghouse, General Electric, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, U.S. Gypsum, Kennecott, Western Union, International Nickel and Sears Roebuck.

ALLEGE THREE BLASTED SAFE

Preliminary Hearing in Case Of Milton, Stedman and Tully to Continue

A preliminary hearing in the case of John Milton, George Stedman and Bert Tully commenced before Magistrate Henry C. Hall in the city police court yesterday and will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning. They are charged with breaking, entering and committing theft in the Safeway Stores Ltd. at 707 Fort Street on or about December 20.

Joseph McKenna appeared for Stedman, and W. A. Bretlauer represented Milton and Tully.

William B. Sylvester, the fifth witness called by Claude L. Harrison, city detective, gave the following evidence: "I saw three men enter from the rear of Safeway Stores, Ltd., between 8 and 10 o'clock on the night of December 20. They ran, and I followed. One of them struck me on the shoulder with an iron bar. I telephoned police, and followed one of the men to Blanchard Street and Burdett Avenue where he disappeared. I cannot identify any of the three men." Sylvester stated.

Constable Thomas Bannister told of interviewing Sylvester and accompanying the district fire brigade. On returning to the premises he found entry had been gained through a skylight and the store safe had been blown open and looted. George Hall, store manager, testified that Milton was taken from the safe.

INVESTIGATES CRIME

Detective David Donaldson told how the burglars had forced open a door at the side and stacked up four safes before blasting it open. He identified samples of flour, soap, splinters of wood, some and pieces of paper taken from the premises.

Detective Louis Cullen described arresting the three accused at the Vancouver police station on Dec. 24, accompanied by Detective George Claparde. He also said he received from Vancouver detectives three cardboard boxes containing money, and conveyed Donaldson's samples to Inspector F. C. Vance, criminologist.

Constable Alvin Smith, R.C.M.P., Vancouver, stated he apprehended Tully at the Vancouver Possession on December 25 when he asked for a parcel under the name of Mc-Call. He said Stedman left the building as he approached Tully. Later he recovered two parcels containing money from the home of Milton.

Constables William Andrews and John Howe gave evidence of recovering the car at Beacon Hill Park, and of seeing Litchfield leave the driver's seat. Accused claimed he had intended to drive Miller home, and was merely "getting the feel" of the machine.

OPPOSITION TO ORDER PRESSED

Progress Reported in Campaign to Force Repeal of Rentals Regulation

Progress in the campaign to induce the Federal Government to repeal the Wartime Rentals Order in Council affecting real estate men are opposed was outlined by Robert Letwisg, secretary, at a meeting of the Real Estate Board of Victoria in Spencer's dining-room yesterday.

The board has received co-operation in every move it has made, he said. These referred to editorials, radio broadcasts, discussions and public support of a petition urging the repeal of the regulations, announced early in December to tighten control of rental rates and impose stricter conditions on the sale of homes.

"The Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards, Mr. Letwisg said, had complimented the Victoria Board on its aggressive attitude, while the Vancouver Real Estate Exchange had also expressed its approval and the Victoria City Council had endorsed the board's stand.

URGED TO CONTINUE

We certainly have to do something now to back up what we have already done," he asserted.

Already, he said, R. W. Mayhew, M.P., had recommended to Ottawa that the new regulations be modified, and that the three-man board which formerly operated in Victoria be re-established.

R. H. Smarke, president, said that the Prices Board had recently issued a new explanation to justify the regulation, providing that a tenant must be given at least twelve months' notice to vacate a home which has been sold.

He recalled that in earlier announcements the Prices Board officials had said the regulations were adopted to create a feeling of security among tenants and to curb the activities of unscrupulous agents. In a recent announcement, C. R. DeMara, rentals administrator, had described the main objective of the regulations as "to prevent, as much as possible the unnecessary movement of families during the war."

Perusal of the board's efforts to have the rentals order rescinded was discussed under the direction of the executive.

FOREST FIRE DRAMA TO OPEN AT CAPITOL

Bringing together three of Hollywood's brightest stars, Paulette Goddard, Fred MacMurray and Susan Hayward, Paramount's fiery Technicolor saga of the 'NW Timberlands, "The Forest Rangers," will open on Monday at the Capitol Theatre. The supporting cast includes Lynne Overman, Albert Dekker, Keefe Toomey, Eugene Pallette and Rod Cameron.

Forestry critics have acclaimed this swiftly moving romantic drama as one of the season's most exciting films. Its locale is the scenic wonderland of the high California timber country where Rangers Paul Clifford and Forest Service wage a ceaseless battle against raging forest fires.

AMUSEMENTS

On the Screen

Atlas—Brod Crawford and Ronald Reagan in "Desperate Journey."

Capitol—Mrs. Miniver," with Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon.

Capitol—"My Sister Eileen," starring Rosalind Russell and Brian Aherne.

Dominion—Joan Crawford and Melvyn Douglas in "They All Kissed the Bride."

Oak Bay—Merle Oberon and Dennis Morgan in "Affectionately Yours."

Plaza—Fredric March and Veronica Lake in "I Married a Witch."

Rio—Riders of the Purple Sage," starring George Montgomery and Mary Howard.

York—Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland in "Babes on Broadway."

At the Theatres

ATLAS THEATRE For obvious reasons, there will be some carefully planned errors in Errol Flynn's new starring picture, "Desperate Journey," a story of R.A.F. flyers, their organization and their ships, ending tonight at the Atlas Theatre. Much of the screen play takes place in a huge Hudson bomber, in its control room, navigator and radio quarters, turret, and gun control stations. Men familiar with such ships as intricate as watches and as neatly put together, will have to look closely to see that the ship is not a standard job.

CADET THEATRE M-G-M's "Mrs. Miniver," which ends tonight at the Cadet Theatre, is based on the book by Jan Struther. It was a series of graceful, small sketches concerning an Englishwoman and her family. The play, which stars Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon, is a war story stressing the theme that this is a people's war rather than just a soldiers' conflict. Teresa Wright, Richard Ney and Dame Eam May Whitty also have prominent parts.

CAPITOL THEATRE "My Sister Eileen," starring Rosalind Russell and Brian Aherne, will end ending tonight at the Capitol Theatre, is based upon a Broadway stage success which, in turn, was based upon Ruth McKenney's New Yorker stories. And the New Yorker stories were based, for the most part, on the wild adventures of two Columbus, Ohio girls—who had come to New York to win fame and fortune as a writer and actress, respectively. They wound up in Greenwich Village, amongst the wolves and the gay dogs and the jealous cats, and they got into all kinds of trouble.

DOMINION THEATRE A tender romance wreathed in gayety, Columbia's "They All Kissed the Bride," is now playing at the Dominion Theatre, with Joan Crawford and Melvyn Douglas starred. Directed in zestful comedy tempo by Alexander Hall, maker of such other hits as "Here Comes Mr. Jordan" and "The Thing Called Love," "They All Kissed the Bride" includes in its top-flight cast such players, as Roland Young, Billie Burke and Allen Jenkins. F. J. Walton penned the screen play.

OAK BAY THEATRE "Affectionately Yours," the Warner Bros. release which ends tonight at the Oak Bay Theatre, stars Merle Oberon, Dennis Morgan and Rita Hayworth. Action filled supporting roles in this romantic comedy include Ralph Bellamy, George Tobias and James Gleason. "South of Suez," a powerful melodrama, is the second feature on the bill and stars George Brent, Brenda Marshall and George Tobias.

RIO THEATRE The performance of George Montgomery, the ex-Montana cowboy in "Riders of the Purple Sage," ending tonight at the Rio Theatre, has been acclaimed by audiences for his finest to date. Mary Howard, Robert Barrat, Lynne Roberts and Kaza Richmond are also featured in "25th Century-Fox's "Riders of the Purple Sage." It was directed from Zeuina Grey's famous novel play by William Bruckner and Robert Metzler.

PLAZA THEATRE They say there's no least one redheaded girl every who sets Hollywood walking. This year it's Susan Hayward, the girl who loses her man in "I Married a Witch," ending tonight at the Plaza Theatre. Susan, the slender maiden who hailed from Brooklyn, bounced out into eye-filling prominence with these fiery top.

TORK THEATRE Richard Quine who plays Mickey Rooney's dancer friend, Morton Hammond, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Babes on Broadway," ending tonight at the York Theatre, was born in Detroit, Michigan, November 12. Young Quine started in vaudeville at eight years of age and has been dancing ever since. His first motion picture role was in "The World Changes," and he continued his Hollywood career in such pictures as "Orchestra Last," "Dames," "Little Men," "Dinky" and "Sons of the Underworld."

THIEF IN THE SADDLE

By STEPHEN PAYNE

CHAPTER IV

"He was a thoughtful, trusting husband, wasn't he? And you were thoughtful to marry a divorced woman with property. How tragically disillusioned she must have been before death claimed her, Storm Drew."

The taut ripped out an oath. She was disillusioned and now Jessie has started the truth! But she's very young. I believe I can still twist her around my finger and take her away with me.

"You catch a rabbit before you cook it," remarked Brenda.

Drew said: "I'm sorry you'll catch this particular rabbit . . . It seems this conversation has taken a turn I didn't intend to have it take, and that I've been talking too much."

Brenda answered quickly. "Which doesn't matter, since I'll never have a chance to repeat anything you may have said. By the way, what's going to happen to me?"

"I'm sure you, Miss Walsh, will be nothing pleasant. If, when I no longer have need of you, I should turn you loose you might become annoying. Floyd Hassell, popping up at some inopportune time, as well with me."

The cattle were streaming out of Cold Water Pass and ahead of them by the rolling, lumbering wagon of Greasy Park Fay swung a wide curve skyline of the Blue Tip Mountains was vividly outlined against the first light of a cold, clear dawn. Far ahead the cattle drew into a long and came loping a compuncher of the crew. While still fifty yards from Storm Drew shouted: "Hey, Walsh, this fellow shouted. "Hey, Storm, the owners picked her up!"

As if a horned had stung him, Drew tipped around in his saddle. "Jessie!"

"Hurry!"

Hearing this, the hopes which Brenda had managed to hold at high level, dropped with suddenness of last night, plummeted. All that was left was to be morose and let her continue to hope for a deep, way. Still there was always something left, and Brenda was determined to cling to it. Three-quarters of an hour later Jessie Hassell, mounted on a splendid bay, rode into camp. Drew, from the moment she appeared, was aware of her presence. Her eyes were bright, her cheeks flushed, her teeth and her hair a golden glow. Jessie, he knew, was in love with Hassell and there was no doubt that Hassell was in love with her. But what the devil? Didn't Link Fay marry her?

The puncher's grin faded. "Nope now all I know is that Link overtook me and the rest as we were bringin' up the drags. He said he'd put Jessie the pinto mare and a mounted dead against both he and you. Storm, there's trouble with Hassell and them others. But he's gone and we've heard nothin' of Mill Farrow. Link's side pard was to ride right on the job while Link rid to tell me he'd let me know."

"Where" said Drew, peering at Hassell's party. "The men I was footin' enough to understand" he didn't believe he could put up a fight, but there's problems of his own to meet the press from Idaho."

"Yeah, I reckon," Jessie agreed. "Don't worry 'bout them jiggers now Storm dearie. Link said he'd been lookin' the place over and there's nothin' nor nobody 'cept only flyin' critters can get into it from that west end."

ADVERTISERS NOT CUTTING BUDGETS

TORONTO, Jan. 8 (CP).—Most Canadian advertisers will maintain their advertising appropriations in 1943 at about the same level as last year, a survey conducted by Crowell-Collier Publishing Company, a weekly publication of Toronto, indicates.

Marketing's survey obtained from a completely representative number of businesses, showed that 58 per cent plan to leave their appropriations unchanged, 12 per cent will spend more money, 18 per cent will spend less, and 12 per cent are undecided.

Marketing says: "The percentage of those showing increases indicates that they will spend more money on advertising in 1943 than in 1942 per cent a figure almost double last year's.

Those who will spend less are some complete drops in the total of advertisers replying, or 69 per cent. This figure is a considerable advance on last year's same percentage of 48.5 per cent. Press advertisers have been the greatest users of spending less, the percentage under this head in 1942 being 18.6 compared with 23.9 last year.

The publication notes that replies to a question on the use of specified media show "the more widely used media all indicate an increase in the number of those who will spend the same or more than last year, the same on the sum of advertising and those papers rose from 34.6 to 43.5 per cent. In the same field, those planning to spend more rose from 19.4 to 23.7 per cent and those showing a decrease dropped from 21.7 to 11.2 per cent.

BOUT IS SET FOR JAN. 30

Castilloux and Lust to Meet In Edmonton for Services' Crown

EDMONTON, Jan. 8 (CP).—LAC Dave Castilloux, Canadian welterweight-boxing champion, will meet Pte. Al Lust, of Calgary, here January 30 in a ten-round bout for the services welterweight championship, but Castilloux's Canadian crown will not be at stake. It was announced today by Pte. Lieut. W. C. Cowdie, of the R.C.A.F.

Previously the bout had been billed as for the Canadian welterweight title, but reports from Montreal yesterday said it was to be a non-title affair.

Castilloux, now en route, will report to the R.C.A.F. January 10 and go into training. He has been posted here. Lust will do his training at Calgary, where he is stationed with the army. All proceeds of the bout will go to the army and air force benevolent funds.

Last time the two met several months ago in Montreal, Castilloux decisioned the Calgary fighter.

BALL PLAYERS GIVEN OPTION

May Give Up War Industry Jobs and Continue Careers on Diamond

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (CP).—Press officials of the War Manpower Commission said today that under voluntary labor stabilization plans being placed in effect throughout the United States there is nothing to prevent professional baseball players from giving up war industry jobs to return to their ball clubs.

The job stabilization agreements, which are expected to be in effect within three months in each community of more than 30,000 population, generally deal with voluntary agreements by war industries among themselves to stop transfers of workers. Other employers in non-essential industry in the areas are requested to abide by the agreements.

The spokesmen emphasized that the commission had no authority to compel baseball players to remain on war jobs, and added it was not presently planned to object to players rejoining their clubs unless the war industry employer protests the transfer. Then W.M.C. could try to persuade the player to stick to war work.

(Under Canadian job-freezing laws, some National Hockey League players who had been working in war industries before the opening of the 1942-43 season were prevented from rejoining their clubs at the opening of the season. Pat Egan, of Detroit Red Wings, was a case in point, and he stayed at his job in a Vancouver shipyard until he joined the army.)

Angott to Stage Boxing Comeback

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 8 (AP).—Sammy Angott, who announced a short three months ago his retirement as lightweight boxing champion, said tonight he is planning a ring comeback.

"I've been in training for the past week," said Angott. "My injured hands, which caused me to decide to quit, have healed again—something I didn't think ever would happen.

"I'm all set to fight and expect to be in shape for my first ops in about three or four weeks."

Angott said he would "start all over again" to regain the light-weight crown, over which numerous scrambles and elimination tournaments have sprung up.

CAMERAMEN TO DO NAVY FILM

Representatives of Leading Newsreel Producers Arrive in Victoria

Three of America's ace cameramen, who have brought to the moving picture screen some of the world's most spectacular and exciting events arrived in the city yesterday to film activities of the Royal Canadian Navy. They are Hamilton Wright, Jr., director of the camera news, representing a United States newsreel; poor old New York and Miami; Richard Brinks, still cameraman, his brother, and Joseph Gibaldo, newsreel cameraman.

In Canada at the invitation of John Grierson, of the National Film Board, their attention will also be devoted to war industries and defence activities here and elsewhere in the Dominion.

Through Fox Movietone News, Universal Newsreel, Paramount Sound News, M.-G.-M. News of the Day and Pathe News the pictures they make will be carried to theatre screens for the entertainment and instruction of millions of people in all the free countries of the world.

DELIGHTED WITH CITY

Arriving here from the Northland, they were immediately enthusiastic over Victoria's mild climate and delighted with the scenic wonder of Vancouver Island. Like the producers and actors who made the Commando film here last Summer, they saw great possibilities for moving picture production here.

"This is indeed Shangrila," said Hamilton Wright enthusiastically. "You've got something here that people everywhere should know about."

In the North they filmed construction highlights along the Canadian-Alaska Highway.

Yesterday morning the visiting cameramen called on E. C. Rowebottom, deputy minister of trade and industry, to discuss arrangements for their programme here.

HIGHWAY BUILT THE HARD WAY

Route Selected for Canada-Alaska Road Most Difficult, Says F.C. Green

"The Americans took the hard way, both in distances and the character of the country, in the route they selected in building the Canadian-Alaska Highway," F. C. Green, surveyor-general for British Columbia told members of the Real Estate Board of Victoria in a luncheon address yesterday.

Mr. Green described the advantages and disadvantages of the various routes under consideration from time to time, and how the present road, a distance of 1,671 miles, from Dawson Creek in the Peace River Block to Fairbanks, Alaska, was rushed to completion.

He mentioned the proposed routes to the North—the route from Hazelton, the alternate route from Prince George, and a third route from Vanderhoof North via Stuart Lake.

United States army engineers, flown over the air base route, saw how fast it was and, disregarding the muskeg problem, chose that route against the advice of old-time Northerners who knew the country well, he said.

The gravel-surfaced highway, he said, permits the servicing of airbases along its route and enables the United States Government to transport supplies through to Alaska.

WAR CHANGED IDEAS

"Up to 1939 everyone thought of a road to Alaska as a tourist route, but the war changed all that, and in 1941 a chain of airports extending to Alaska was built," he recalled.

"It was a fact that a chain of airports lay along the Fort Nelson and Fort St. John route that induced the United States Government to follow it. They didn't do much investigating before adopting the route. Their plan was to have a truck road and to service the airports."

The topography of British Columbia had a great deal to do with the selection of the various routes proposed, Mr. Green said.

"The trend of all our mountains and watercourses is northwest or southeast. This fact has a very important effect on transportation, though it hasn't been taken advantage of generally in highway communication."

Mr. Green spoke of the potential natural wealth of the northern part of the Province and particularly the Rocky Mountain trench, where coal and oil deposits were believed to be considerable.

SCHOOL GROUP GIVEN ADVICE

Methods of Educational Co-operation Outlined by Dr. Plenderleith

Three possible methods of administrative co-operation between the adjacent municipalities are being reviewed by the Greater Victoria Amalgamated Schools Working Committee following a report addressed by Dr. William Plenderleith, of the Department of Education.

The three types of educational amalgamation, for which provision is made by The School Law of British Columbia, were set out by Dr. Plenderleith as follows:

(1) Complete consolidation, which entails the abolition of existing school boundaries and the redistribution of a unified school area.

(2) The abolition of school boards and the placing of schools under an official trustee with each of the former districts paying a pro rata share of the total expenses based on per pupil cost.

(3) Inter-school board agreements for the exchange of school accommodation and services, with accounts being settled between boards on a recurring house basis.

Dr. Plenderleith's address given in the Saanich School Board office, was in connection with the committee's request for the assistance of the Minister of Education in considering what might be done to equalize the educational opportunities for all children in the Greater Victoria area. The committee consists of school trustees.

WILL CONSIDER CAREFULLY

"We are not getting out on a limb in this thing" said Trustee J. R. L. Burridge, of Saanich, chairman of the joint committee. "Trustees of each of the municipalities are deeply sensible of their responsibilities, not only to their own ratepayers, but to the children, who should receive the best education that we can afford. It is the evident intension of all the representatives to canvass this thing thoroughly and bring before the public its advantages and disadvantages."

Dr. Plenderleith pointed out that the creation of larger school administrative units is not a new plan, having been carried out in the British Isles for twenty years; in Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, in thirty-eight of the forty-eight States in the United States, and in the Canadian provinces.

"Technically," said Dr. Plenderleith, "this movement may be defined as co-operation for administrative and educational purposes only of two or more existing school districts."

MOST EFFICIENT METHOD

The speaker explained that under the first plan the schools would be administered by a consolidated school board with equal representation from each municipality. To provide equity of payment for equity of educational opportunity it would be necessary to establish some basis of equalized assessment, at least for educational purposes. Under this plan, he said, the consolidated school board estimates would require approval of the several councils concerned. He described this as the most efficient and effective method of amalgamation, but could be brought about only by an active and insistent demand by the public.

Dr. Plenderleith dismissed the second plan as "entirely unsuitable to the situation."

The third plan, he believed, was one which might be considered carefully at this time as it involved no administrative change, and was, to a small degree already in effect. While neither as efficient nor as capable of the same economies as the first plan, it would save capital expenditure and debt for the new accommodation and facilities which are available in adjoining municipalities. It would enable boards to provide for their pupils some types of service which are uneconomical for one board alone to provide.

Nanaimo Youth —Escaped Death

NANAIMO, Jan. 8 (CP). — Frank Nicholson's low priority raising for air travel probably saved his life, he was telling his friends after arriving here from the Yukon Territory for a visit with his parents.

The eighteen-year-old Nanaimo lad had been working on a river boat operating between Whitehorse and Fort Yukon, Alaska. He made arrangements to return home by airplane, but at the last minute was compelled to relinquish his reservation because of the higher priority rating of another traveler.

The plane was Canadian Pacific Air Lines ship which disappeared December 30 while on a flight from Prince George, B.C., to Vancouver and still is missing. Hope has been given up of finding the passengers alive, so young Nicholson apparently missed death when he was forced off the plane.

Nicholson took the next plane which was held at Fort St. John, B.C., for ten day because of poor flying conditions. He arrived home in Nanaimo yesterday.

SOVIET HONORS

During the first fifteen months of war, Russian orders and medals were awarded to more than 180,000 people of forty nationalities.

POPE'S FILM BANNED

BERNE, Switzerland, Jan. 8 (CP).—A Rome dispatch to The Basler Nachrichten said today Fascist authorities had withdrawn the film, "Pastor Angelicus," showing the life of Pope Pius XII before his ecclesiastion, as well as his average working day during the war, apparently because it was considered too peaceful. It was planned to exhibit it for several months in theatres throughout Italy and later throughout the world.

DESCRIBES CULTURE OF CHRYSANTHEMUMS

At their monthly meeting held at the City Hall on Thursday, members of the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society received valuable advice from M. O. Mayhew, silviculturist of the society, who spoke on the "Taking of Cuttings."

Mr. Mayhew stressed the importance of starting with good healthy stock, the best cuttings being those which grow farthest from the old root. Cuttings of the late blooming varieties should be taken at this time, he said, and will root very quickly if inserted in wet sand, made firm beforehand.
